

nieuwe dakconstructie

This image shows a close-up of a new roof structure. It features a network of grey steel beams and a teal-colored metal sheet. Yellow coupling pieces, which are L-shaped metal brackets, are used to connect the beams. These pieces are secured with large hexagonal bolts. The perspective is from below, looking up at the structure. In the background, a body of water and some distant buildings are visible.

koppelstukken